

Compton 4 Cops: Community-Based Crime Fighting in Disadvantaged Racially and Ehtnically Diverse Urban Communities

By Ron L. Dowell

Outskirts Press. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 244 pages. Dimensions: 8.5in. x 5.5in. x 0.7in. Since the public does not have a consistent or even coherent set of expectations for the police to fulfill, a one-size-fits-all approach to policing service that was designed for the majority ethnic or racial group is no longer tenable. I advocate ways that policing can be improved to satisfy the goals of reducing crime, reducing citizens fears, and satisfying victims that justice is done, particularly in racially and ethnically diverse disadvantaged communities. Other authors, notably Braga and Weisburd, have described in their book, Police innovation: Contrasting perspectives, the various policing models now in use. They have not however offered a historical perspective that traces many modern police practices to innovations developed during the American period of slavery. Those authors also have not prominently discussed the problem of building trust nor have they explored the class and race context of American policing as practiced in todays environment. Other authors have not written from the perspective of one who has experienced urban policing as both service recipient and service provider. No one has so thoroughly reviewed the problem of policing in an urban environment from the policy prospective...

READ ONLINE
[6.67 MB]

Reviews

The book is fantastic and great. It is filled with wisdom and knowledge I am just easily will get a enjoyment of looking at a composed publication.
-- Bradley Hahn

This composed book is wonderful. It is amongst the most awesome book i actually have read through. You will like the way the author create this publication.
-- Miss Fanny Osinski V